during the week and spend over Sunday. F. E. Leinsider wife and son of Elyria visited over Sunday and the 4th at Toney Manley's.

Will Fordham and wife were in Cleveland last Friday to attend the funeral of a neighbor of Mrs. Fordham's parents. A man by name of Ottop Hanimer who died from the effects of lightning running thru a wire cord attached to a light he was using while fixing his auto during a severe storm on Tuesday. His house caught fire from the same bolt. They had just finished paying for the home and had it painted. He leaves a wife, son and daughter. He had been a salesman for 14 years for the Weideman

Company.

A bad accident happened Sunday evening when a street car ran off the track south of the pumping station into Mr. O'Leary's yard. It did not tip over. A doctor from Detroit was injured so badly that he died before they reached the hospital. Walter Ulmer of Medina went head first thru the vestibule window and was cut on the face and ear. Some of the other passengers received bumps and bruises and shocks to their nerves. The wrecking crew cleared the track this morning.

Mrs. E. Leinsider is expected home this week from a four weeks visit in West Virginia at her son William Leinsider's.

Toney Manley recently had fourteen teeth drawn and he had a touch of lock jaw set in afterwards. He is better now, and able to do some of his farm work.

Miss Cora Plitcher of Strongsville was married to Lewis Hauck of Cleveland a few weeks ago and last Saturday night after the Odd Fellows meeting the Rebecca's met in the hall and gave them a reception and presented the bride with a cut glass dish. Ice cream and cake were served.

Farm News

Early Maturing Cockerels

Even though prices may be good, poultrymen are cautioned by specialists at the Ohio State University against selling their largest and best looking cockerels as broilers. These it is said should be saved for breeding stock and should be picked out now rather than making a selection in the fall.

Trap-nesting experiments show that when hatched at the same time and raised under the same conditions, the early maturing cockerel is the son of the high producing hen and his daughters make high producing hens, whereas late maturing cockerels are the sons of the poor layers and their offspring are likewise poor layers.

It is a good practice, however, to sell other cockerels as soon as they reach 1 1/4 to 2 pounds, first because the price per pound for that size early in the year is so much higher than in the fall when the market is glutted.

Plant Soybeans

In response to the complaints that wireworms have destroyed growing corn, crops specialists at the College of Agriculture are suggesting that farmers plant soybeans. The wireworms have been particularly destructive on land that has been in sod for a long period. Some farmers state that even their second planting has been destroyed.

Soybeans can be planted for hay up until the latter part of June. The Medium Green, Ito Can, Mongol, Ohio 9035, Peking, Manchou, and Elton are good varieties for this purpose.

Soybeans for hay should be cut, says Prof. W. E. Hanger of the agricultural college, when the pods are well formed and before any leaves have fallen. They should be mowed after the dew is off, raked when well wilted, and allowed to cure in windrow and cock until ready for the haymow. They need about the same curing as clover. Yields equal to or greater than those from red clover may be expected.

Is Red Clover Doomed

Serious diseases and injury from insect pests on red clover are causing many farmers to grow sweet clover, particularly in western Ohio. Corresponding decreases are noted in the red clover acreage.

In answer to questions from new growers as to when sweet clover should be cut, crops specialists say that it should be mowed when it is 2 to 2 1/2 feet high regardless of whether it is in bloom. It should also be cut high so that branches will be left. Otherwise the plants will be killed.

STONE FRUITS SHOULD NOT BE SET IN THE FALL

Of all fruit trees only apples should be planted in the fall, and even with the apple spring planting is equally satisfactory, according to the department of horticulture at the Ohio Experimental Station.

Cherry and peach trees planted in the fall are quite likely to be killed or injured by winter freezing.

Trees set in the fall do not have a chance to become established and hence are much more liable to winter injury than trees that have passed through one growing season.

It is also pointed out that there is not much advantage in fall planting over spring planting, for the trees may be heeled in a nursery row and kept in good shape during winter time.

Some orchard growers use dynamite to blast out the holes for trees. This is regarded as especially desirable only in soils underlain with an impervious hardpan or those in which their compactness makes digging slow and difficult. The dynamite should be used only when the ground is dry. When the soil is filled with water the explosion of the dynamite forms a jug-shaped cavity about the size of a barrel in which the soil is very loose.

FORECASTS SMALL CROP FOR OHIO THIS WINTER

Ohio's winter crop this year will be only a little more than half of last year's crop, according to the June state-federal crop report.

The forecast is for 28,416,000 bushels as compared with 53,480,000 last year and an average of 35,170,000 during the last ten years.

The condition of the crop is given as 66 per cent of normal, a decline of 2 per cent since May.

Forecasts for corn, oats, rye, clover and alfalfa are for smaller crops than last year. A preliminary survey of corn acreage indicates 3,589,000 acres compared to 3,700,000 last year.

Oats showed a 4 per cent decline in acreage to 1,486,000 acres. The condition of the crop is 82 per cent of normal.
